Dear Harold,

Well -- after about a year's silence X on my part I hope this letter finds you and Lil well.

This past year has seen many changes take place, in my life as well as everywhere else. I'm working for a radio station now -- located only about three hours from you, across the Pa. line.

One of the prime reasons I'm writing at this time is because I'm doing some writing again, seriously, and find that ir you have no further use for it some of the material I gave you back in '68 would be very helpful to me. In addition, I've often thought about you and Lil, and find that not being in regular touch with you has cut me off xx from two who I considered to be good friends.

Since I'm relatively close, perhaps we could get together on a weekend or whatever and discuss these and other issues. Hope to hear from you soon.

Russ
